

Family Values

Chapter 5: Family Values · Topic 1

Key Concept

Family values are principles and beliefs passed down within a family, like respect for elders, honesty, and caring for others.

These values are often taught through example, stories, traditions, and daily interactions within the family.

Strong family values help build good character, guiding us to make ethical decisions and treat others with kindness.

While specific values may vary between families and cultures, most share common themes of love, respect, and honesty.

Quick Revision Notes

- Family values: principles passed down in families.
- Examples: respect for elders, honesty, caring.
- Taught through example, stories, traditions.
- Also through daily interactions.
- Strong values build good character.
- They guide ethical decisions.
- They also guide kindness to others.
- Common themes: love, respect, honesty.

Practice Questions

- 1 Discuss a value your family has taught you.
- 2 Talk about a family tradition that reflects your values.
- 3 Discuss why honesty is an important value.
- 4 Discuss how family values shape our character.
- 5 Share a story that taught you a value.
- 6 Discuss a value you want to pass on to others.