

I'll Be Responsible and Sensitive

Chapter 7: I'll Be Responsible and Sensitive · Topic 1

Key Concept

Being responsible means completing our duties, like homework and chores, and being accountable for our actions and their consequences.

Being sensitive means understanding and caring about other people's feelings, especially those who may be facing difficulties.

We show responsibility by taking care of our belongings, following rules, and helping at home and school.

Practising responsibility and sensitivity helps us become better individuals and contributes to a caring, respectful community.

Quick Revision Notes

- Responsibility: completing duties, being accountable.
- Examples: homework, chores.
- Sensitivity: caring about others' feelings.
- Especially those facing difficulties.
- We show responsibility via caring for belongings.
- Also following rules, helping at home/school.
- Practice builds better individuals.
- It contributes to a caring community.

Practice Questions

- 1 Discuss one responsible action you took recently.
- 2 Discuss how you can be sensitive to a friend's feelings.
- 3 List two chores you are responsible for at home.
- 4 Discuss why following rules shows responsibility.
- 5 Talk about helping someone who was struggling.
- 6 Discuss what good citizenship means to you.