

International Problems

Chapter 16: International Problems · Topic 1

Key Concept

Terrorism poses a significant global security threat, requiring international cooperation to combat extremist violence and protect civilians.

Climate change is a critical global challenge, causing environmental damage, requiring coordinated international action to reduce emissions and adapt.

Economic inequality between and within nations creates social and political tensions, requiring policies that promote more equitable development.

Addressing these international problems requires cooperation between nations, international organisations, and coordinated global policy efforts.

Quick Revision Notes

- Terrorism: significant global security threat.
- Requires international cooperation to combat.
- Climate change: critical global challenge.
- Causes environmental damage.
- Needs coordinated action, emission reduction.
- Economic inequality: between/within nations.
- Creates social, political tensions.
- Addressing problems needs global cooperation.

Practice Questions

- 1 Research an example of international terrorism.
- 2 Discuss climate change's global impact.
- 3 Research economic inequality between nations.
- 4 Discuss how international cooperation can help.
- 5 Research an international organisation addressing these issues.
- 6 Explain one international problem in your own words.